Hebron and the Importance of Interfaith – Leora and Harry Salter

The first part of the Parasha focuses on the life and death of Sarah. After the brief description of Sarah, we then learn about the sub story of Avraham and מערת המכפלה. Different commentaries have various ideas about why it was Hebron and the significance of מערת המכפלה.

Rav Kook poses the question (Chapter 23, Verse 2) of why was Sarah buried in Hebron? He provides an answer that Hebron is the place for the preparation of the Jewish people. This is alluded to in the story of David HaMelech where in Shmuel Bet, (Chapter 2, Verses 1-4) we learn that G-d tells David to “Get Up” and go and rein over the city of Hebron. Later on in Shmuel Bet (Chapter 5), the tribes of Israel tell David to go and rein over Jerusalem, to become the leader of Israel. Rav Kook comments that for David to become the King over the tribes of Israel, he had to be prepared for it and there is no better place to prepare oneself than Hebron.

Based on this explanation, why is Hebron the place of preparation and why Hebron specifically?

In Chapter 23, Verse 2, we learn that Sarah died in Kiriya Arba, which is in Hebron. Later on in the Parasha we learn about the acquisition of the מערת המכפלה. Rashi asks the question of why מערת המכפלה? He provides two answers, the second of which is useful to answer our question. The answers given is that it has that name because מכפלה means to double which either refers to the two floors, one of top of the other or because it doubled with couples (sets of couples buried there).

The Ramban and the Sforno have a different view from Rashi and say that מערת המכפלה refers to the name of the place and has nothing to do with the people buried there.

So how come Rashi states his second answer that מכפלה refers to the people buried there?

The Bereshit Rabah (58:8) states that Adam and Chava were buried in מכפלה, agreeing with the explanation Rashi provides, which the Ramban explains to mean the field called מכפלה and not just the cave meaning that Avraham bought the field and the cave. This explanation of the Bereshit Rabah can help answer the original standing questions.

Rashi and the Bereshit Rabah state the people who were buried in either the field or the cave of מכפלה give the reason for Hebron. Rashi says Sarah was buried in Kiriya Arba because the literally meaning is the “city of four” and there are four couples buried there in Hebron: Adam and Chava, Avraham and Sarah, Yitzchak and Rivka and Yaakov and Leah.

Rav Kook explains that the reason Hebron and מכפלה were chosen is to highlight the link between the Jews and non-Jews and the responsibility we have to shine the light of the Torah onto the nations of the world. The combination of the multiple generations show this. Adam and Chava were not Jewish but they’re the beginning of human-kind. Avraham and Sarah are the creators of the Jewish religion and their close family who carried on their ideologies are buried with them. There is no better place to start your preparation than Hebron and why the person who started the movement to rebuild the Beit Hamikdash was the King of Hebron before becoming King of Jerusalem.

Hebron and the links between the forefathers and foremothers and Adam and Chava show us that interfaith relationships are pivotal for us to spread the light of Torah and the light of Hashem into the world.

Spelling It Out

Last year I wrote that we should not encourage our children to participate in Halloween activities, even though the contemporary celebrations are essentially secular and commercial nonsense. When I addressed a religious training programme for palliative care staff in Auckland, a nurse was aghast that I had named a couple of Hogwarts ghosts. How could a rabbi read Harry Potter? Wasn't magic and the occult an absolute taboo?

In many places the Torah warns against manifestations of witchcraft and communing with the dead.

"You shall not suffer a witch to live." (Shemot 22,17),
"You shall not eat any thing with the blood; nor shall you use enchantment, nor observe times." (Vayikra 19,26),
"A man or woman who is a medium, or who is a wizard, shall surely be put to death; they shall stone them with stones; their blood shall be upon them." (Vayikra 20,27)
"There will not be found among you one who ... practices divinations, an astrologer, one who reads omens, a sorcerer or an animal charmer, one who inquires of 'Ov or Yidoni, or one who consults the dead. For anyone who does these is an abomination of Hashem and for these abominations Hashem has cast out the nations from before you." (Devarim 18,9)

The Torah, itself, does not disavow the potential for magic nor reaching into the afterlife. Pharaoh's magicians can replicate some of Moshe's signs. The witch of Ein Dor raises the spirit of the Prophet Shmuel for Shaul Hamelech. Lavan is the first to explain he has garnered spiritual knowledge נחשתי through divination (Bereshit 30, 27).

I have certainly encountered congregants who have felt haunted or troubled by spirits of deceased relatives. It would be wrong to dismiss or denigrate their experience. We do not address these through séances, but through normative halachic mechanisms of prayer, supplication, mechila and Tehillim.

The Talmud Yerushalmi (Chagiga / Sanhedrin 6:6) tells of witches generating food and drink through spells and that Shimon ben Shetach executed 80 witches on one day in Ashkelon.

"What was the wisdom of the East? The men of the East know about mazalot and astrology." (Pesikta Rabbati)

Even though in his own writings, Rambam references traits associated with birthsigns of the Zodiac, he warns us away from witchcraft on the basis that much of it is the work of charlatans who prey upon the gullible. We should not encourage either. In Hilchot Avoda Zara (11,17) he states, "wise and sound-minded people know that all these matters which the Torah disallowed are not matters of wisdom, but formless nonsense followed by senseless people for the sake of which they abandoned every path of truth."

Rabbi JD Bleich writes, "Rambam does not explicitly deny the possibility that persons who have achieved the requisite degree of knowledge and understanding can, with adequate preparation, employ metaphysical or transnatural powers to achieve physical ends."

Ramban on Devarim 18,9 (above) writes that Hashem did allocate powers within the "Upper Realms" but that "the rabbis said regarding magical practices that they 'contradict the Council Above'; in other words, they subvert the simple forces of nature, which is a contradiction to the upper realms to some extent. Therefore, it is proper that the Torah prohibit them so that the world will be left to its normal function and its natural state, which is the desire of the Creator..."

The Israeli Penal Code legislates 417. (a) If a person pretends to perform witchcraft with intent to obtain anything, then he is liable to two years imprisonment; if he obtained anything for or on the strength of the witchcraft, then he is liable to three years imprisonment; for purposes of this section, "witchcraft" includes magic and fortune telling. (b) The provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply to magic or fortune telling, which does not exceed the scope of amusement or entertainment, that amusement or entertainment...

We do not imagine that today's performance magicians, such as Rabbi Geoffrey Shisler (a member of the Magic Circle!) Penn and Teller or David Blaine have super-human powers; rather, they are accomplished and practiced entertainers. Contemporary Poskim have instructed that within every show a Jewish magician should teach a trick so that the audience realise how they can be fooled and thereby to appreciate the artists for their skill and sleight of hand. We should know that their magic is an illusion and our wonder, our delusion.

There was a great atmosphere in shul last week – and a particularly good induction Shabbat for the Youth. It is so lovely to see people back!

Wishing everyone a שבת שלום and חודש טוב
