SHABBAT WILL START AT 5:07pm AND TERMINATE AT 6:12pm
KINLOSS SHUL IS OPEN FOR SERVICES

PLEASE NOTE SERVICES FOR SHABBAT AND SUNDAY MUST BE PRE-BOOKED BEFORE 9am ON FRIDAY 19TH FEBRUARY

We are commanded to 'remember Amalek'; this portion is read from the Torah on the Shabbat before Purim. If one cannot attend shul to hear Parashat Zachor (Deuteronomy 25:17-19), then one may fulfil the mitzvah by reading it at home from a Chumash, using the trop (notes) if you know them (you should also say both 'zecher' and 'zeicher' to fulfil both opinions).

Additionally, one may listen to Parashat Zachor when it is read as part of the weekly laying on August 21 this year.

5:15pm MINCHA AND SHIUR by Rabbi Laitner titled:
"Chapter 6: A sleepless night and the salvation of the Jews"

6:12pm MA'ARIV & TERMINATION OF SHABBAT
in the Main Shul

Of the 613 Commandments in the Torah, only three of these appeared in Genesis. When the children of Israel were getting ready to leave Egypt, we added the mitzvot of marking the calendar and observing Pesach. In the last couple of weeks, we have received the 10 Commandments on Sinai and touched upon a multitude of different ideas: Shabbat, Kashrut, the legal system and the festive cycle.

This week's Parsha of Teruma is notable because it gives many instructions to the children of Israel but contains only one commandment.

The instructions all concern for the building of the Mishkan or Tabernacle in the wilderness. This was the forerunner to the Temple which would later be built in Jerusalem; it was the place where the 10 Commandments would be kept in their holy Ark and where sacrifices and prayer would take place.

The design works roughly from the inside outwards. The Ark, the Table, the Menorah in the Holy of Holies, out to the Court, the Altar, the surrounding partitions and canopies. Each is commanded in intricate detail in order that we might fulfil God's injunction: "they should build me a sanctuary and I shall dwell among them."

Despite the multitude of directions and instructions, only one of these is reckoned as one of the 613 commandments by which the Jewish people continue to be expected to run their lives. This is not completely unexpected; those instructions belonged to the era of the erection of the Mishkan, which was part of our pre-Temple existence, almost 3½ millennia ago. We will not be expected to build a Mishkan again...

What, though, is the single instruction that was given in Sinai, then that is still in force today?

It is a Mitzvah that, "when you put the poles in the rings of the Holy Ark, you may not remove them."

The 10 Commandments are placed in a Holy Ark, a box overlaid in gold and decorated with cherubim. On the sides of the Ark are rings and through these rings are passed two poles in order that it can be carried. It is a mitzvah that, once these poles have been inserted, they may never be removed. That mitzvah was true almost 3½ thousand years ago and that mitzvah remains in place and is effective and incumbent upon all of us today.

There may well be some solace that however many of the 613 Commandments we may have violated in our lifetimes none of us has been guilty of removing the poles from the holy Ark.

But why is this mitzvah there at all? And why a mitzvah that "touches on" a core element of the Mishkan but is not about the Ark itself?

Our commentators suggest a couple of possibilities. One is that the presence of the poles meant that the Ark could immediately be lifted and moved around as was necessary. There would never be any need to go running and looking for missing parts. The honour of the Ark demanded that it was always in a state of readiness. It could be picked up at a moment's notice without even having to manhandle the Ark itself or jostle the poles into the rings. A second possibility is that as soon as the poles came into contact with the holy Ark, they acquired some of its sanctity and were no longer just profane poles.

I have always understood this mitzvah and these explanations in a metaphorical sense.

The poles are the connection between the Holy Law and the people charged with carrying it. The law is the undistilled word of God. As such, it can be a little too hot to handle and a little hard to grasp. For that reason, we need the oral tradition, rabbinic legislation and explanation. This tradition reaches out from the Torah given at Sinai towards us. And it enables us, living in the 21st century, to reach out and carry God's ancient law as we continue our march through history towards our destiny.

The Oral law and Jewish teaching strive to make the infinite and perfect accessible and attainable.

The Torah is a precious gift, and we may not allow that it is jostled and manhandled.

Shabbat Shalom.

Remembering - This Year

The Maftir of Shabbat Zachor, instructing us to remember to blot out the name of Amalek is one of the only Torah readings where it is considered a mitzvah D'Orayta (from the Torah, itself) to attend (in both senses of being present and listening to each word).

This year, it is harder for people to attend.

While hearing the Zachor passage (Devarim 25 17-20) is a Mitzvah D'Orayta, hearing it on the Shabbat before Purim is Rabbinic injunction.

There is no need to bring a Sefer Torah into a prison or a hospital on Shabbat Zachor for people who would be unable to attend shul.

The Torah requirement is to hear Zachor once within each calendar year – and this would be (minimally) satisfied by attending shul on Parashat Ki Tetze (29 Aug 2020 / 21 Aug 2021).

Though leining it in a regular minyan is the ideal, it is acceptable bediavad (if absolutely necessary), to have a special reading at another time. In the absence of a minyan, it can be done without a minyan. In the absence of a kosher sefer Torah, it can even be leined from a chumash or siddur.

The Magen Avraham rules that the mitzvah is fulfilled by hearing the leining before the Megilla on Purim, which is a different passage entirely (Shemot 17, 8-18) from the end of Parashat Beshallah. This is the original relation of the battle against Amalek.

Accordingly, this year, for those unable to attend shul, reading Zachor at home from a Chumash is a perfectly acceptable resolution.

Vis a vis Megilla, hearing it leined from a scroll is essential to the Mitzvah, and even though the Mishna tells us that in Temple / Mishnaic times it was possible to read the Megilla on the market days prior to Purim in hamlets where a minyan could not be achieved on the day, the practice has become to lein Megilla only on the eve and day of Purim. (One should hear it twice).

There will be a number of Megillah readings in shul, which will be broadcast on Zoom to those who prefer to stay home or are unable to join us. Being physically present is clearly the ideal way to fulfil the mitzvah; however, our Dayanim reassure those at risk of contracting or spreading the virus that under these difficult circumstances, listening to a live reading on Zoom is the safer course.

Dayan Gelley was at pains to distinguish between the person who is constrained and the person who elects not to attend; also, that Zoom is a better-than-nothing option, rather than an alternative or precedent for healthier times.

Details of the Megilla readings are in Kol Kinloss. Many of the readings will be streamed and the links will be made available next week.

There are four essential Mitzvot of Purim; hearing the Megillah on both evening and morning; Mishloach Manot, where we give at least one gift of two pieces of ready-to-eat food to another person, Matanot LeEvyonim, where we give at least one coin to at least two poor people, who are able to spend it on the day, and Mishteh (or party).

Mishloach Manot, Matanot Le'Evyonim and the banquet should be performed on the day. This year, please do be Covid compliant in any food preparations. Do consider reducing the quantities and deliveries of Mishloach Manot and rather increasing the Matanot Le'Evyonim.

A minhag of Erev Purim (this year on Thursday 25th Feb) is to give the Mechatzit HaShekel (1/2 Shekel). Because the word Teruma (donation) is used three times in the leining, the tradition has become to give three times the half coin of the realm (locally the 50 pence piece).

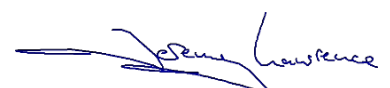

The mitzvot Mishloach Manot of Matanot LeEvyonim and Mishteh all apply on the day of Purim (rather than the preceding night). Correctly, the gifts should be sent before halachic midday (about 12.13pm).

Given that this year Purim is Erev Shabbat, the Purim Seuda should be commenced in the morning (Rema) or failing that 3 hours before sunset which is approx. 2.35pm (Maharil).

There is an historic minhag (Meiri) to combine the Purim Seuda with the first meal of Shabbat. This is achieved by davening Purim Mincha during the day, then starting the meal with Hamotzi and Borei Peri Hagafen on the wine. One should light candles just ahead of the normal time, cover the Challa and recite kiddush (but not repeat Borei Peri Hagafen). This detail gives the custom its name – pores Mappa u'mekadesh – spread the cloth and make Kiddush. Challa should be eaten and the meal continues. According to Meiri, Birkat Hamazon uncomfortably includes Al Hanissim for Purim and Retzei for Shabbat. The Mishnah Berura 695:15 directs that Al HaNissim is not recited.

For those who follow the Meiri, immediately after the seuda, Maariv should be recited. One of the main opponents of this minhag is the AriZal, who ruled, as we follow, that Kiddush for Shabbat should only be recited after davening.

More on Purim next week.
