Hakheil – when we all go to Jerusalem

By Rabbi Michael Laitner

‘Gather (hakheil) the people together; men, women, children and those proselytes (gai-recha) within your gates. In order that they will hear and listen to be in awe of the Lord your God, observing and performing all the words of this Torah’ (Devarim 31,12)

This verse is part of the mitzva of hakehil, which is the penultimate mitzva in the Torah. It applied when the Beit Hamikdash (Temple) stood and the Jews were sovereign in Israel. As described in Devarim chapter 31 and the seventh chapter of the Talmudic Tractate Sota, all the people gathered at Beit Hamikdash in Jerusalem during the festival of Succot in the year after a Shemita (Sabbatical year) – i.e. every eight years, in the first year after the end of a seven-year Sabbatical cycle.

This year is a Shemita year. Next Succot look out for a mini Hakheil-style ceremony that is scheduled take place at the Kotel (Western Wall) as a reminder of what the full Hakheil would have been like in the days of the Beit Hamikdash (Temple) when the king read certain sections of the Torah in front of the people. Since 1967, Israeli presidents have instead re-enacted aspects of Hakheil at the Kotel.

Rambam (Maimonides), the great medieval polymath, writes that this experience strengthened people’s commitment to the Torah and their belief in God (Laws of Chagiga, chapter 3). The ceremony of hakheil bears many resemblances to Matan Torah, the giving of the Torah on Mount Sinai. Both contained an important experiential element, designed to make a lasting impression on participants. We gain a taste of this by reading the Torah’s descriptions of both Matan Torah and hakheil.

At this time of the year, so many of our gather together in Shul to reaffirm our commitment to the mitzvot and to re-accept God’s sovereignty over us on Rosh Hashana, Yom Kippur and beyond. May the lessons and experience of hakheil resound in our hearts and our minds to inspire us in our religious experiences, especially as we express our commitment as Jews on Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur.
