This week's newsletter is sponsored by Rebecca Corney and family in loving memory of her father Michael Goldmeier Z"L on the occasion of his first yahrzeit on 11th Nissan.

'When a leader sins, and performs one of the commandments of God, that may not be done...and becomes guilty' (Vayikra 4:22)

The word used for 'when' is 'asher', an unusual choice which alerts us to consider why it was chosen. Rashi (the premier Torah commentator) explains that 'asher' is related to the word 'ashrei', meaning 'happy' (as in Psalm 84, the familiar 'ashrei' line in the Siddur).

Basing his comments on the Talmud (Horayot 10b), Rashi states that any generation whose leader is prepared to admit to a sin and attempt to atone for the sin is a happy ('ashrei') or fortunate generation.

Rashi's grandson Rashbam, proposes a different comparison to explain "asher" by quoting usage of this word in Megilat Esther (6:8). From Rashbam's comments, we can infer that 'asher' in the Megillah refers to the regal dress of a leader, describing how Haman had to dress Mordechai in royal garments. Thus, we see that use of the word 'asher' can denote leadership.

Returning to Rashi, why is the generation that he describes considered to be happy? After all, its leader has sinned! In addition, understanding 'asher' to mean 'when' in our pasuk (verse) suggests that the leader is bound to sin!

The 19th century scholar, Rabbi Baruch Halevi Epstein, in his 'Torah Temimah' commentary, suggests that the generation is happy because it sees its leader set an example for the whole generation to follow. If the leader can say 'mea culpa' after having erred, then take the appropriate steps to atone and show his allegiance to the law, nobody else in society could think that they are above the law.

Building on Rabbi Epstein's idea, we might suggest that part of leadership is the ability to bounce back from setbacks. As Mishlei (the book of Proverbs) states 'a Tzaddik (righteous person) falls seven times, and gets up' (24:16). As the commentary of Rabbi Meir Leibush (aka Malbim, 1809-79) explains there, although a Tzaddik may fall, he nonetheless gets up and advances, with the help of God.

ExoDogs

Several families have gained lockdown pets, which will be enjoying their first Pesach. As well the Paschal lamb, we have the plague bestiary of frogs, lice, wild beasts and locusts and the kid, cat, dog, ox of Chad Gad Ya.

Though I do not bless Rolo with my (other) children and grandchildren on a Friday night, I have heard of doggy-daft families using the possuk וְלֹא יִשְׂרָאֵל לֹא יִחָרֵץ - לְכֹל לֶשׁוֹן לְמַאִישׁ וְעַד-בְּהֵמָה לְמַעַן תִּדְעוּן אֲשֶׁר יִפְלֶה ה' בֵּין מִצְרַיִם וּבֵין יִשְׂרָאֵל: "but not a dog shall snarl at any of the Israelites, at man or beast—in order that you may know that the Lord makes a distinction between Egypt and Israel." (Shemot 11,7)

The Egyptian dogs were singled out for praise in the Exodus!

The Netziv comments that it is known that dogs are spiritual detectorists וגם מיוחד טבע הכלב להכיר איזה – and while they would normally bark at the passing of villains, they let the Israelites pass unchallenged that night even though there were, for sure, some villains escaping amongst them out of deference for Bnei Yisrael.

There is a lesson to be learned in identifying spiritual priorities and seeing the wider picture rather than conforming to type and picking at principled details at every perceived offence.

Our dogs, cats, chinchillas, lizards and rabbits do need to keep Pesach, too. Rolo helped me make a video a while ago, which you can see on <https://youtu.be/-dliSZhMT0o>. There are details of Kosher LePesach pet foods on the LBD website <https://www.kosher.org.uk/article/pet-food-2021>

Roast Meat at Seder

Every family has its own traditional meals for Seder night. In Temple times the menu was very specific, with the Paschal Lamb, Matzah and Marror as the essentials. The lamb had to be roasted whole. In the Talmudic passage which gives the original text of the Mah Nishtana (Pesachim 116a), one of the questions was on all other nights we may eat meat which is roasted, stewed or boiled, but tonight we must eat roast meat. (The Jerusalem Talmud only has 3 questions, matzah, roast meat and dipping).

Since the destruction of the Temple, there has been a custom not to eat roast lamb at Seder because people might imagine that we are sacrificing despite the halachic abrogation of korbanot. This is one of the enduring distinctions between the Jews and the Samaritan community, who still slaughter their paschal lamb on Mt Gerizim.

The focus of halacha is not only on the lamb but also on means of cooking. The Shulchan Aruch rules (Orach Chayim 476:1) that in places where the minhag is to eat roast meat one should; but where the minhag is not to eat roast meat, one should not, lest someone might say that this is the Paschal sacrifice.

The position of the Mishna Berura is that for Ashkenazim, the minhag is not to eat roast meat of any sort. The Shulchan Aruch records that the prohibition on roast meat is not only against lamb, but also beef and even fowl, i.e. anything that requires Shechita (OC 476:2). It does not extend to fish.

Roasting includes pot roasting or baking meat exclusively in its own juices. However if the meat is marinated or cooked in a sauce, then according to most opinions it does not present a problem.

The Taz (1586-1667) considers that the restriction against roasting beef and chicken was a concession to those who wanted to extend the prohibition to all meat, lest one erroneously suppose that it was a roasted sacrifice. He discounted this additional stricture on the basis that this would impinge upon our enjoyment of the meal.

Enjoying the festive meal is a halacha. Whatever your minhag and whatever shiurim you follow for the obligatory quantities of matzah and marror, you should leave enough room to enjoy the Shulchan Orech repast that has been prepared – and indeed leave enough room to eat and savour the Afikoman which follows.

Bon Appetit, Good Yomtov, B'tayavon, Enjoy!
